IELTS Up Words!

Lesson 16: Punctuality

Punctuality

Hello and welcome to the sixteenth lesson of IELTS Up Words! I am Yasi ,and I am here with another lesson to help you learn more words and get more ideas .As you can see, each lesson is filled with information that you probably did not know prior to starting this course. Therefore, you need to take your time in every lesson. I mean, don't rush it. Spend as much time as needed on every lesson, and be sure to sleep eight solid hours to help restore your brain function and enhance your recall. At the same time, try not to fall behind on studying the lessons. Set a schedule for the completion of this course and try your best to stick to it. Remember, this is a vocabulary course, and it takes time for the words to sink in.

Now in this lesson, I am going to ask you not one, but two questions about being punctual or on time. It would be an immensely helpful practice if you listen to my answers only after you think about each question.

Ready?

How often are you late?

Well, it depends on the occasion, if it is a get-together with some close friends, I have to admit that for the most part, I can be late by ten to thirty minutes. I know it looks bad, but I can't help it. It takes a lot of time for me to get ready, and by the time I call a cab, it is already too late. For business meetings, however, I make sure to be punctual enough not to embarrass myself or lose an opportunity.

Do you feel guilty when you are late? What is the worst thing about it?

Oh, definitely yes! I feel especially bad if I keep a group of my friends waiting. I guess the worst thing about not being on time is that you are going to get a bad reputation for it. For example, my friends think of me as being perpetually late, which is just downright embarrassing, and their view of me wouldn't change even if I showed up on time for an event.

Speaking Tip

Speaking part 1 Tips: The Dos and Don'ts

Do not just answer with a "yes" or "no."

Develop your answers but with only one or two more points.

Be confident when you answer the questions.

Make eye contact with the examiner like when you are talking to a friend.

Do not overcomplicate your answers.

Get to the point quickly.

Do not use too many linking words unnaturally.
