Lesson 24: Smartphones

Smartphones

Hello once again. Welcome to another lesson of IELTS Up Words! You are listening to the twenty-fourth lesson of the course, which is about technology and smartphones. In this lesson, we are going to focus specifically on smartphones and telecommunication, and in the next lesson, we will shift the focus more on the subject of technology.

Tell me, do you think it is possible to live without smartphones these days? The way I see it, it is almost impossible. You know why? Because our lives depend on them. We use smartphones to get around, order food, call and send messages, and even earn money.

Of course, if they were taken away from us, it wouldn't be the end of the world. This is mostly because smartphones are addictive. We constantly scroll down social media feeds and double tab to like some pictures. Moreover, these modern phones are damaging our social lives, as everyone is spending more and more time in this cyber world and thus, reducing the time spent on face-to-face human interactions. So, I would say that smartphones are a double-edged sword. If you say that something is a double-edged sword, you mean that it has negative effects as well as positive ones.

Do you agree? What do you think a world without smartphones would look like? When answering these questions, make sure to use the correct tense. And since using a variety of tenses is necessary on the IELTS test to demonstrate grammatical range, learn to do so as often as possible. But remember that it should all happen naturally and not mechanically. It all should be a natural progression.
