IELTS Up Words!

Lesson 25: Technology

Hello, and welcome to another lesson of IELTS Up Words! If you are enjoying this course, make sure to check out our website for more courses and useful content. Even if you are not tech-savvy, I promise you can learn a lot from our other courses. Our website is user friendly, with a beautiful landing page and design. You are going to love the various features that we have provided for our users, such as a forum, an online placement test, and a blog.

But you do need to know a thing or two about technology to be able to learn online. For instance, you need to be able to start up and shut down your computer, google, log in, and log out of your account on the website. These are the basics in terms of working with cyberspace, and you can learn them in a very short time.

I strongly recommend that you go beyond those fundamental functions and learn more advanced topics, like working with Microsoft Office and Photoshop. Because the world is changing, and very soon, older gadgets and tools will become obsolete. We need to adapt to the new ways of the world, and learning to work with computers is a good place to start.

Now, let's get to today's question, which is about technology.

Do you use any gadgets on a daily basis?

Yes, I do for sure. Although I don't consider myself a geek, I quite enjoy using my laptop, smartphone, and tablet every day. I use them for various purposes. For example, I use my laptop to surf the net and for work, as its screen is comfortably big, so I don't need to squint. And I use my smartphone to listen to music and stay connected with my friends and my tablet to read e-books, as I'm an avid reader.

In the previous lesson, I talked about the importance of changing tense when you are answering IELTS questions, or when you are speaking in general. We do this to display our grammatical range and get the score for it. However, it is extremely important to note that this change of tense should not be forced or in an inaccurate way. Make sure the context fits and don't just change tenses aimlessly. Another point here is to only use the grammar that you are 100% comfortable with so that you won't make any mistakes.

Speaking Tip

Types of Sentences

- The IELTS needs to know that you have the capacity to use various sentence types.
- Use different types of sentences in your speaking.
- Sentences come in three main types: simple, compound, and complex.
- Simple sentences consist of a subject and a verb; they are also called independent clauses.
- Compound sentences consist of two independent clauses joined together with a conjunction, such as "and."
- Do not use too many compound sentences in your speaking and writing.
- Complex sentences use an independent clause combined with one or more dependent clauses. A dependent clause is similar to an independent clause, but it can't stand on its own as a complete sentence. Complex sentences use conjunctions to connect them too.
