IELTS Up Words!

Lesson 32: Energy Conservation

Hello, my friend. Let's start lesson thirty-two together. Shall we?

In the previous lessons, we talked about environmental issues, but since this topic is of utmost importance, I am going to dedicate a few more lessons to this topic. In this lesson, we are going to talk about energy conservation and later, touch on a point that can help you with your speaking.

But what does it mean exactly? It is the prevention of the wasteful use of energy, especially to ensure we can continue using it.

Do you think you waste too much energy in the home?

To be honest, I think I do. I still use a tumble dryer and usually machine-wash the clothes in hot water, which I have heard are not environmentally friendly ways to clean our clothes. I also use a microwave more than I would like to admit, and I suspect it is damaging to the environment.

Why do you think people prefer to drive a car instead of using public transport?

The main reason, I think, is because of a lack of proper public transport infrastructure. For example, buses run late all the time and the seats are uncomfortable. And as for air pollution, I guess of all the vehicles out there, buses pollute the air the most. Of course, I do believe that people need to act more responsibly and use the public transport system whenever possible. Or at least carpool to work if possible.

Speaking Tip

Why TED Talks?

I mentioned earlier that we will also touch on a point that can help you with your speaking with regards to more advanced or academic subjects. And that, my friend, is to watch a lot of TED Talks. I know you have heard about them, but have you ever practiced with them? TED Talks are devoted to spreading ideas, usually in the form of short, powerful talks. They have a website and an app for you to watch the videos or download them onto your device.

I recommend that you choose a TED Talk for every common speaking topic and analyze it. Make note of interesting collocations and useful words and learn them in the context.

Now, we are going to listen to the first sentence of a TED Talk about saving energy. See how much you can learn just from that part.

"So by a quick show of hands, how many people here before they left for work or school this morning made a conscious effort to turn off all the TVs in their home?"
