IELTS Up Words!

Lesson 37: Crime Questions

Hello there! You are listening to lesson thirty-seven of IELTS Up Words. I am Yasi, your IELTS mentor from Lingemy.com. Did you master the words from the previous lesson? Good! Because you are now going to put them into use and answer the following questions. There are three questions in this lesson, so let's dive in.

What sort of crimes are common where you live?

I guess petty crimes and larceny are the most common. Not a day goes by without hearing some news about a pickpocketing incident or a burglary. I myself have been the victim of petty crime. Last year my phone got snatched right out of my hand in a blink of an eye.

What kind of people shoplift, and what kinds of things do they steal?

It seems to me that shoplifters are sometimes just some troublesome teenagers who want to rebel. But I guess the majority of them are those who are of low socioeconomic status, which is really sad. And they usually steal wallets, phones, earrings, and anything that is shiny-looking or expensive and that can be sold in exchange for money.

Do you think criminals can change?

Yes, I think most criminals are capable of change. This is because most of them commit a crime as a result of poverty or gang involvement. So, if the government improves their conditions, then, chances are they won't re-offend after prison. This, of course, does not apply to those offenders with a mental illness, like those psychopathic murderers.

By the way, did you know that it is okay to ask the examiner to repeat a question in case you didn't catch it the first time? Yes. It is totally fine, and you won't lose mark because of that since you are being assessed based on your speaking and not your listening comprehension.
