IELTS Up Words!

Lesson 38: The Media

Hello once again! I am back with another lesson of IELTS Up Words! In this lesson, we are going to learn a lot about the media and what it has turned in the age of technology. I will speak my mind and use a lot of new vocabulary for you to learn. Then, you should say whether you agree with me or not. After having mastered these words, move on to the next lesson for a few related questions to practice further and learn even more.

The media has gone through drastic changes in the past couple of years as a result of the rise of social media and the Web. Nowadays, we don't follow current affairs by watching the news on TV. Instead, we turn to our smartphones and read Telegram messages or tweets to learn about what is going on in the world. One disadvantage of this modern switch is that we might come across misinformation too often.

Misinformation is simply incorrect or misleading information that spreads easily because it is usually sensationalized by the media. And why is that? Simply because fake news is more entertaining than facts. Today's press is more after entertainment, which is why news headlines and front pages are usually dedicated to celebrity gossip and biased content. It is not surprising if they decide to relegate an important piece of news or turn a blind eye to it if it is not interesting.

Of course, we need to remember that we have a broad range of media sources available to us nowadays. There is an enormous amount of alternative media that provides a healthy balance to the mainstream. So, if people really want to be informed, they are unlikely to turn to tabloid newspapers.

Speaking Tip

Avoid This Mistake

Some nouns in English are always used as plurals, for example, jeans, glasses, trousers, etc. It is better to avoid them in the IELTS speaking test, especially in part two, as you might make a mistake with regards to subject verb agreement, or agreement in general.

Subject verb agreement simply means the subject and verb must agree in number. This means that both need to be either singular or plural.

Common mistakes

Incorrect: My jeans is very comfortable.

Correct: My jeans are very comfortable.

Incorrect: Who did you give your trousers to? I later gave it to my sister.

Correct: Who did you give your trousers to? I later gave them to my sister.
