IELTS Up Words!

Lesson 5: Childhood

Hey there! Welcome! I am Yasi, your IELTS mentor, and here we are with the fifth lesson of IELTS Up Words!

How are you doing today? Did you wake up early or did you sleep in? If you work from home, I recommend that you stick to a routine and don't break it just because you don't go to an office. Anyways, as you remember in the previous lesson, we talked about how age affects the quality of learning a new language. I said that it is easier for you to learn a new language than someone who is still teething or with baby teeth! If I want to be brutally honest with you, yes, it is easier for a child to speak the language with a better accent. But the good news is that the accent is not scored in IELTS. It does not matter if you speak English with a British, American, Indian, or Persian accent. As long as you speak clearly and pronounce words correctly, you will be fine.

Now, speaking of children, I am going to ask you another question in this lesson. Listen to it carefully and speak about it loudly. Then listen to my response. Ready?

Describe a memorable period or event from your childhood.

Well, I guess when it comes to my childhood, there are numerous occasions that I can recall as memorable, but there is this little experience which I think you are going to love hearing about and it is about my first time riding my bicycle without training wheels!

I got my first bike at the age of four. I remember how excited I was for it and how thrilling it felt the first few times that I gave it a ride. My dad had attached training wheels to it right from the start, but I wanted them removed so badly since I considered myself a seasoned rider only after a few days. Haha! I remember I even threw a tantrum because of that! Anyway, after a week or so, my dad agreed that I was ready, and so he removed those wheels and lifted me on the seat. I had my feet on the pedals and my hands wrapped around the handlebars, ready to coast on two wheels...and so I did! It all happened spontaneously. I will never forget that sense of accomplishment and freedom that I felt on that day, and I still reminisce about it every so often.

Speaking Tip

Fillers

- A filler word is an apparently meaningless word, phrase, or sound that marks a pause or hesitation in speech.
- Also known as a pause filler or hesitation form.
- Some of the common filler words in English are well, hmm, um, and you know.
- They are more naturally used in part three of the IELTS speaking test.
- Don't use them too much as they can hinder fluency.
